

Otago Global Health Institute 10th Annual Conference

Health and Development

15-16 November 2017 | Dunedin Public Art Gallery
30 The Octagon | Dunedin

As one of the University of Otago's flagship research centres, the Otago Global Health Institute's annual conference is an opportunity for researchers working across diverse disciplines in global health, to meet, discuss projects, and foster new collaborations.

Keynote Speaker

Professor Mark McGillivray, global expert on causes of inequalities of health outcomes among developing countries.

2017 William Evans Visiting Fellow; Research Professor in International Development at the Alfred Deakin Research Institute of Deakin University; former Chief Economist of the Australian Agency for International Development.

Call for papers

We invite submissions from any interested parties (including students) on any subject relevant to global health in low resource areas.

This year students can submit abstracts for either a poster or oral presentation. There will be two student prize vouchers valued at $75 each.

Registrations

On-line registrations are now open and close 8 November 2017

More information is available

Web: otago.ac.nz/oghiconference | Tel: +64 3 470 3584 | Email globalhealth@otago.ac.nz

This year, the OGIH conference will be held back-to-back with the Australasian Society for Infectious Diseases NZ Annual Meeting being held from 16-18 November, also at the Dunedin Public Art Gallery.

Photo credit: S McAllister